Task 3.

Celebrating Victory Day in Russia
Victory Day is a traditionally holiday celebrated on the 9th of May. It is a patriotic day, when people commemorates the victory of the USSR over Germany. Every year in all cities across the country a lot of parades and celebrations take place. Despite the fact, that the holiday is celebrated very bright, 9th of May is a sad holiday for a lot of our population. Many people lost their close relatives. Many people organize a local military parade.

and watch fireworks at night on Victory Day. Most veterans wear their medals and go to the parade on an event organized by local organizations. Another tradition is to give flowers to veterans. At home, families watch their favorite Soviet films about war.

I think, the Victory Day is one of the greatest holidays during the year. I'm proud to live in a time when everyone remembers not only the good times, but also the terrible wars.
